Blue Beard: Reflection Questions

Choose a time this week to re-listen to the story from today on KCC's YouTube page. If you think about the characters in the story, imagine they are a part of your story. Reflect on the questions below, you may understand better who these characters are in you or in your life.

Who is Bluebeard to you? In other words,

Who was it that criticized what you did or how you did it, or why you would want to do "THAT?!"

How did that make you question your decisions?

Did the negativity or criticism erode your confidence in what you were doing, your dreams?

Who is the young wife to you?

What decisions did you make as a youth that continue to influence you into your adult life?

How did we explain away the things that bothered us?

How do we sometimes rationalize our decisions?

Do we sometimes deny certain options?

Who do the Sisters represent in your life?

Who else has influenced, or continues to influence your life, for better or for worse, or both?

(parents, teacher, boss, spouse, children, etc.)

What part of me or area of my life has been killed or lays dying?

A hope or dream maybe?

Things that you've lost and haven't grieved?
